

The warning, from the Consumer Product Safety Commission, covered machines made between March 2011 and April 2016. It did not specify a model.

The commission suggested people use only the delicate cycle to wash bedding and water-resistant and bulky items because the lower spin speed "lessens the risk of impact injuries or property damage due to the washing machine becoming dislodged."

The agency said it is working with Samsung on a remedy.

Related: U.S. formally recalls Samsung Galaxy Note 7

The warning comes more than a month after Samsung was hit with a federal class-action lawsuit by customers who said their machines had exploded during use.

Customers in Texas, Georgia and Indiana all said they were washing clothes when they heard a violent boom.

A washer belonging to a McAllen, Texas, woman "exploded with such ferocity that it penetrated the interior wall of her garage," according to court filings. A woman in Dallas, Georgia, said it felt and sounded as if "a bomb went off."

The lawsuit, filed in federal court in New Jersey, references similar reports collected by local news and filed online with regulators. It also claims Samsung "has moved aggressively to collect and destroy all evidence of the defective machines" after they exploded.

Related: Samsung customer says his new Note 7 phone burst into flames

Samsung declined comment on the litigation. It directed CNNMoney to a statement on its website that says the company is talking to U.S. authorities about how to address potential safety problems.

THE 2016 RANGE ROVER

FROM $84,950*
EXPLORE

Legal

BECAUSE ARRIVING IN

Advertisement

Mortgage & Savings

Powered by LendingTree

Samsung also said its customers "have completed hundreds of millions of loads without incident since 2011."

A call to the law firm that filed the complaint was not immediately returned.

Samsung (SSNLF) earlier this month said it would replace 2.5 million of its Galaxy Note 7 smartphones after reports of battery fires. And this week, a tech worker in China, which was not part of the recall, told CNNMoney that his device burst into flames while charging.

CNNMoney (New York)

First published September 28, 2016: 12:51 PM ET

| Loan Type | Rate | APR |
|-------------|-------|-------|
| 30-yr fixed | 3.00% | 3.22% |
| 15-yr fixed | 2.50% | 2.65% |
| 5/1 ARM | 3.13% | 3.18% |

| Loan Purpose | Loan Amount | Payment |
|-------------------|-------------|------------|
| Refinance 5/1 ARM | $225,000 | $964/mo |
| Purchase 5/1 ARM | $350,000 | $1,499/mo |

Get Personalized Rates >

Terms & Conditions apply
NMLS #1136

Paid Content

Recommended by Outbrain

The Best Car Interior Available for Under $30,000 Is in a Mazda
Car and Driver Blog

Did You Know Your iPad Could Do This?
The iPad Receptionist

How 2 MIT Grads Are Disrupting the Auto Insurance Industry
LiveSmarterDaily

Forget Your 401k If You Own A Home (Do This Instead)
OneSmartPenny.com

First Pics: New and Redesigned SUVs for 2017
Kelley Blue Book

How hybrid IT is complicating life for network managers
SolarWinds

Paid Content

by Outbrain

American Residents Born Between 1936...
LiveSmarterDaily

First Look at 2017 Automobile Models...
Kelley Blue Book

What Rebel Wilson Looks Like Now Is...
Sportingz

The One Item That Could Prevent...
EatLiveGlow